

The Evolution and Human Adaptation Program (EHAP) at the University of Michigan is proud to present our fall 2021 speaker series:

The Social Components of Fitness

Wednesdays, 12-1:15pm

In-person locations announced weekly

Livestream link: <https://umich.zoom.us/j/93683585282>

September 8th

Brooke Scelza
Department of Anthropology
University of California-Los Angeles

Husband, lover, pater, genitor: Paternity and concurrency in Northwest Namibia

September 22nd

Joan Silk
School of Human Evolution and Social Change
Arizona State University

Reproductive tradeoffs for male baboons: competing versus caring

September 29th

Coren Apicella
Department of Psychology
University of Pennsylvania

From selfish beginnings: Tracing the evolutionary origins of cooperation

October 13th

Jenny Tung
Departments of Evolutionary Anthropology & Biology
Duke University

The social genome and primate evolution

October 20th

Amanda Lea
Department of Biological Sciences
Vanderbilt University

Lifestyle change and health in the Turkana people of northern Kenya

November 3rd

Michelle Brown
Department of Anthropology
University of California-Santa Barbara

Competitive dynamics in a frugivore guide

November 17th

Nicholas Grebe
Department of Anthropology
University of Michigan

Lemur love and the biology of social bonding

December 7th (TUESDAY)

Dan Belsky
Department of Epidemiology & School of Public Health
Columbia University

Title TBD

