2017 Midwest Drosophila Conference

November 4 - 5, 2017

Allerton Park and Retreat Center

This conference is a wonderful small meeting in a self-contained and historic setting. The format and location enable significant interactions among PIs, students and postdocs, and provides a great opportunity for junior researchers to give talks alongside more senior researchers. In addition to being affordable and centrally located, Allerton Park is beautiful in the fall, and its 1,500 acres contain formal sculpture gardens and 14 miles of walking trails.

Program committee:

Laura Buttitta, University of Michigan

Jason Tennessen, Indiana University – Bloomington

Jeremiah Zartman, University of Notre Dame
