

Opportunity to join a large, diverse, successful, and highly collaborative research group studying various aspects of epithelial homeostasis and mucosal inflammation with a particular focus on inflammatory diseases of the gut. A successful candidate can participate in diverse state-of-the-art molecular and cell biological techniques. Potential for highly motivated and efficient candidates to contribute to exciting ongoing research projects.

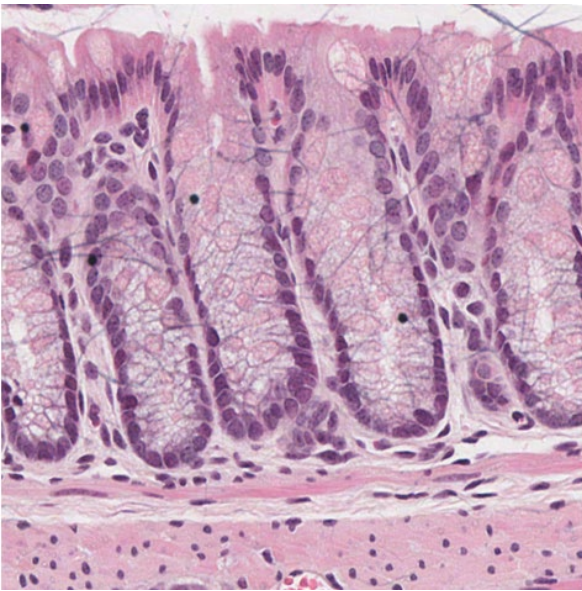

Research Lab Tech Associate in the department of Pathology University of Michigan

Job description:

- Assistance and management of transgenic mouse colonies
- Genotyping
- Cell culture
- Molecular and cellular biochemical analyses
- Maintenance of databases and experimental records

Requirements:

- Bachelor's degree in biological science or equivalent
- Some experience in basic laboratory skills (PCR and gel electrophoresis)
- Good computer skills and proficiency in English
- Strong work ethic and ability to multitask
- A minimum of a two-year commitment

Parkos and Nusrat Lab

<https://www.pathology.med.umich.edu/parkos-nusrat-labs>

Please send your CV to Vicky Garcia Hernandez vgarciah@umich.edu

