

AAS 358.001

Black World Issues: The Dynamics of the Modern Civil Rights Movement

Martha P. Norman, Instructor

Mon. 10:00-12 noon

Wed. 1:00-2:00

3 credit hours (SS)

This course will cover the various phases of the modern civil rights movement from its origins in organized southern activism through its last period which was marked by large scale northern urban unrest. Such a survey will introduce students to the major organizations, personalities, and events that constituted the civil rights movement. It will also provide an opportunity to discuss the dynamics of the movement: the circumstances which facilitated its growth, the resources and energies which sustained it, the philosophies and strategies employed as well as this movement's accomplishments and its legacy.

