COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is about the present political moment in the United States and how citizens are responding to it at the grassroots level. We will talk about grievances of citizens from all sides of the political spectrum, how they manifested into partisan polarization, and how they have (and may) shape electoral outcomes. We will consider the formation of grassroots organizations, online political activism, and the emergence of incivility and violence at protests. The course will be split roughly in half between seminar-style discussions and hands-on research on grassroots protest.

REQUIRED BOOKS (Please purchase from Amazon or other online bookseller. They are also on reserve at the Shapiro Undergraduate library, for your reference.)

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Each of these elements will be weighted as follows in determining final grades:

- Attendance – 15% of final grade.
- Participation – 15% of final grade. Students are expected to read assigned readings prior to the class in which they are to be discussed. Strong participation is indicated by bringing questions and comments about the readings to the discussions.
- Two Reaction Papers – 30% of final grade
- Final Team Presentation of Research – 40% of final grade

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Students will strengthen their ability to analyze the current political context in the United States.
- Students will learn about the efforts of ordinary people to organize in response to the current political situation in the United States.
- Students will learn about how political parties and social movements create competing pressures on citizens to participate (or not) in political activities.
- Students will learn about formulating research questions, stating hypotheses, and designing research.
- Students will learn about the practice of survey research.
- Students will learn how to construct, clean, code, and analyze survey data.
- Students will strengthen their ability to write about and present research.
ACADEMIC HONESTY

All students are required to abide by the academic honesty guidelines of the University of Michigan. Among other things, this means: (1) Students must submit only their own, original work in fulfillment of course requirements; (2) Consulted works must be cited using an accepted documentation style; and (3) Students must provide truthful representations to the professor on issues such as reasons for missing class. The professor reserves the right to clarify how this policy applies on specific assignments prior to the commencement of those assignments. Students requiring additional clarification are strongly urged to consult with the professor before submitting questionable work. Violating this policy may cause a student to suffer severe grade penalties, failure of the class, academic probation, and/or expulsion.

SPECIAL ACCOMMODATIONS

If you think you need an accommodation for a disability, please notify the professor at least two weeks prior to the time when the accommodation will be needed. Some aspects of this course, the assignments, the in-class activities, and the way the course is usually taught may be modified to facilitate your participation and progress. As soon as you notify the professor of your needs, we can work with the Office of Services for Students with Disabilities (SSD) to help us determine appropriate academic accommodations. SSD (734-763-3000; http://www.umich.edu/sswd) typically recommends accommodations through a Verified Individualized Services and Accommodations (VISA) form. Any information you provide is private and confidential and will be treated as such.
