(a) (Z)-
(b) (E)-
(c) not applicable
If the data from part (a) are used as a reference point, then the natural dihedral bond angle for these rings is \( \sim 90^\circ \) — complexation with an atom (in this case aluminum) would pull those oxygen atoms towards the complexing atom and should therefore decrease the angle between the rings.